

It seems that the victors in the last election are having more brains than spoils.

As yet there are very few democrats selling postage stamps at a postoffice window.

We have nothing but good wishes for Cleveland. He won't counsel with old Hendricks.

The kind of reform which is kept on tap at Washington is not palatable to those who hunger and thirst after the sweet juice of office.

Mr. Cleveland has touched the warm side of the newspaper men of the country. He pays in advance for all newspapers ordered to the white house.

Josh Billings is 67 years old and as fat as ever. This is one of the rare instances in which old age doesn't dry up the fountain of humor.

They have done another good thing in the assembly—limited the speaking on a single measure to five minutes. A rule that will prevent long speeches is a golden rule.

Miss Cleveland, mistress of the white house, who, by the way, is a republican, will soon give a dinner to Mrs. Blaine. This will be another honor to the democratic flesh.

For the first time in the history of the United States, a postmaster has resigned. His conscience pricked him severely because he sold postage stamps for a democratic administration.

President Cleveland did quite a commendable thing in turning a cold shoulder to the whiskey ring by refusing to appoint ex-congressman Thompson commissioner of internal revenue.

President Cleveland is already giving us a full day's work for a full day's wages. He breakfasts at 8 a. m.—Ex.

Any man can afford to get breakfast at 8 and work in his shirt-sleeves, for $137 a day, Sundays included.

There is every indication that Judge Graham will allow Mackin and Gallagher to remove to Joint where they will spend a couple of years in honest toil—something they have not been acquainted with for a long time.

West Virginia has a queer notion of public morals. Over one hundred persons were recently arrested on that state for playing dominoes, while the question of paying its honest debts is one not worth considering.

Things are not going to remain quiet on the Potomac very long, because there is blood on the face of the bourbon nation, and "altogether the democratic situation has many signs which indicate an open war in the president at an early day by the entire spoils element of the party."

The best way to give the Iowa prohibitory law a practical test, is to see that it is obeyed. If it proves to be a bad law, then the sentiment of the state will cause its repeal. General Grant once said the only way to cut off a doubtful law was to rigidly enforce it.

The assembly of this state has indignantly postponed the bill to prevent the sale, distribution or exhibition of obscene, indecent, or immoral printing, engraving, or literature. Texas and South Carolina seem to be more mindful of the morals of the young than Wisconsin, for they have passed just such bills.

Brown, the auditor of Iowa, held his office without any bond or surety, and would not surrender the office to the governor. Governor Sherman called out a company of the state militia, proceeded to the capitol, battered in the door, took possession of the property, and placed Brown under arrest. That is the kind of stuff to have in a governor.

The weekly mortality in nearly all the towns and cities of the west continues to indicate the prevalence of pneumonia and kindred affections of the lungs. The changeable weather and the unusual severity of the frequent cold waves over the country to late probably account for the unusual prevalence of the disease at this season. The reports from New York and other seaboard cities indicate that the same tendency is observable there. People should be extremely obsequious about laying off overcoats and warm underclothing until much warmer and more settled weather arrives.

There are not many democrats as considerate as the Arizona editor, who gives notice in his paper as follows: "We try to give our readers a bang-up paper every week, and we find that doing this takes all our time. When an editor has made the round of all the saloons for items, digested all the var news from the Southern and classified all the paid locals, he has done a good week's work and should not be called upon to bear the responsibilities of any office. We are confident that President Cleveland will find men to fill the offices without taking us. If we did not believe so, we would gladly sacrifice our private business for the good of the country."

President Cleveland definitely stated his policy regarding federal offices. To a prominent democrat on Thursday he said it was not his intention to make changes in any of the thousands of four-year term offices, except for cause. When the terms of the present incumbents expire, the offices will be filled by picked democrats. "The principal cause" for change will be the proof of an officer having used his position for political purposes, particularly in the recent presidential election. In this connection, it is stated, there is no use making application for appointment to one of these offices unless it can be clearly shown that the incumbents should be removed "or cause." Under this policy, Mr. Pearson, of New York, will have to go, as his term expires on the 21st.

Twenty-six years ago, says an Illinois paper, Gen. John A. Logan and Col. William R. Morrison were both wounded in the same battlefield, carried by their comrades into the same house, and laid upon beds to die. Singularly enough, they have now been carried to the same house and once more laid on beds to die. It is believed they will die in dead earnest this time—Chicago News.

There may be a little sentiment in the foregoing paragraph, but there is no truth. There were no battles fought twenty-six years ago, and at no time during the war was Gen. Logan so severely wounded as to be taken to a house to die. He was wounded in the shoulder at Fort Donelson, and because of exhaustion and loss of blood was taken from the field for a while, but was not disabled any length of time. Colonel Morrison was only slightly wounded. The second time General Logan was wounded was at Dallas, in 1864, during the Atlanta campaign, when a ball pierced one of his arms, but he placed the arm in a sling, mounted his horse, and inspired his command to victory. It is not yet certain that General Logan will be beaten at Springfield. Should the legislature adjourn sine die without electing a senator, and probably it will, Governor Oglesby will appoint General Logan, which would be an eminently proper thing to do.

WON'T FACE THE MUSIC.

The Wisconsin legislature seems to be afraid to meet the high license question squarely and boldly. It came up on Thursday on the order of business, with the pending amendment offered by the committee on state affairs, which would have the bill in its present shape, with proposed amendments, printed and considered therefor put over till Tuesday evening next. After a considerable discussion upon the preliminary aspect of the situation, a debate ensued upon the merits of the Welsh motion. Messrs. Walsh and Hubbard favored it, while Messrs. Norcross, Adams and Felt thought that the members were sufficiently posted on the points in the bill to vote upon it now. The Welsh motion finally prevailed. Ayes 47, nays 39.

This action shows that there is a disposition on the part of some members to delay action on the bill. It is just as Mr. Norcross says, the members are as well informed as to the merits of the bill as they ever can be, and should vote upon the question at once and settle the matter and proceed to other business. A republican or a democrat, who is afraid to assume the responsibility of voting for such a measure as that without dallying, fearing or trembling, is not a fit man to represent an intelligent constituency.

SOME WISE LEGISLATION.

The Wisconsin legislature has done a wise thing in making quite liberal appropriations for the leading agricultural societies of the state. It did another wise thing in making those appropriations conditional.

For instance: The Watertown fair will receive $10,000 instead of $500, and there is a clause in the appropriation prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors on the fair grounds, and a violation of the law for the forfeiture of the appropriation. The Racine association, which heretofore received nothing, will receive $10,000, and the legislature took good care to enact that on the fair grounds of the association there shall be neither gambling nor games of chance, nor the selling of intoxicating liquors. The Oshkosh society, known as the Northern Wisconsin agricultural association, will receive $2,000 annually for the next two years, and on the grounds of that society, the legislature says, there shall be neither gambling, games of chance, nor the selling of liquors. The Southern Wisconsin association at Mineral Point will receive $10,000, and the same prohibition in regard to gambling, games of chance, and liquor selling like wise applies to that association. The State agricultural society will receive $4,000 annually for the next two years, and in the appropriation bill is that very important clause prohibiting liquor selling, games of chance and gambling.

The legislature did a wise thing in making judicious appropriations for these agricultural and mechanical associations; and it did a good thing, also, when it provided that on grounds of these societies there shall be no demoralizing evils such as gambling and drunkenness.

MARRIAGE AND CHOLERA.

Richard Proctor, the well-known scientist, has written a long article for a New York paper, showing how single people can escape cholera by getting married. It was stated in the Gazette some time ago that statistics from France and other countries showed that for more bachelors than married men died of that disease. Mr. Proctor does not offer to prove that this statement is true. He seems to take it for granted that there is some truth in it, and writes that there is not, that "all the well-served, tea-drinking old maids and bachelors will fly off to the parish and tie up before the threatened coming of cholera this spring."

But the attempt to scare old maids and bachelors into marriage to order that they may escape such a dreadful disease as the cholera, will not be wonderfully successful in this age of the world with the light of experience shining directly into the faces of the unmarried. In a majority of cases the maids and bachelors will be more apt to fall in with the sentiment in Hamlet's soliloquy, and suffer the inconveniences of their present state rather than engage in troubles which they know not of,

and which matrimony would naturally bring. It is a fact, notwithstanding Mr. Proctor's misgivings, that many old maids and rusty bachelors four the consequences of married life more than they do the sufferings and uncertainties produced by cholera, and therefore the effort to drive such into the matrimonial pen will not be generally successful.

Sometimes, yes, very frequently, as the world knows, sentiment and money do a good deal in uniting old maids and bachelors, while the nice points of science and the question of morals, have very little influence on the matter. For the reasons herein given, it is not likely that Richard Proctor or any of the French authorities can work up a marriage boom by any intricate moral or scientific articles or statements on the question of the comparative statistics of cholera and death as related to marriage and celibacy.

AT BAYONET'S POINT.

GOVERNOR SHERMAN, OF IOWA, CALLS ON THE MILITIA.

DES MOINES, Iowa, March 20.—In accordance with arrangements made Wednesday afternoon, under command of Gen. Alexander, with the batts of their muskets battered down the doors and entered and took forcible possession of the office of the state auditor. There is intense excitement at the capital, and numbers who had heard of the affair flocked to the scene, but drove off the militia were declared to guard the entrance to the building.

Des Moines, Iowa, March 20.—In accordance with arrangements made Wednesday afternoon, under command of Gen. Alexander, with the batts of their muskets battered down the doors and entered and took forcible possession of the office of the state auditor. There is intense excitement at the capital, and numbers who had heard of the affair flocked to the scene, but drove off the militia were declared to guard the entrance to the building. Deputy Sheriff threw two of the militiamen to the floor. Auditor Brown declares that the possession is entirely illegal, and that he will legally the auditor and that Cattel has no right whatever to the office into which he has thrust at the point of bayonet. Public sentiment is somewhat at variance on the matter, but a large number of our citizens are disposed to look upon the action of the governor as a big-banded outrage, while some endorse his action. The news caused the most intense excitement and flew about the city like wildfire.

Business Difficulties.

WATERTOWN, Wis., March 20.—The Barrett Hardware company, manufacturers of stoves, gas and water-pipe fittings, and general founders, has an assignment Tuesday to H. G. Griggs. The failure is stated as due to a falling market.

NEW YORK, March 20.—P. A. Aul & Bro., stock dealers of Newville, Pa., who made an assignment, have filed a bill in bankruptcy estimated at $200,000. Their real estate embraces a large interest in the Antietam Iron works in Maryland, ore banks and furnaces at Balling Springs, Pa., and 8,500 acres of land.

Disastrous Conflagration in Augusta, Ga.

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 20.—A fire commenced at midnight, Thursday, over the tobacco store of J. H. Carter & Co., who have a quantity of Virginia tobacco stored. In less than an hour the whole block, extending from Ellis to Green street, was in flames. The stores of Carter & Co., and the warehouse of A. R. Griggs, the planing establishment of Chapin Bros., the produce store of W. A. Ramsey, and Domino's livery were destroyed. The Old Fellows' hall, the old police building, and the warehouse of J. H. Carter & Co. were also destroyed. The loss will probably be $100,000. The insurance is unknown.

The Princeton Alumni Banquet.

NEW YORK, March 20.—The annual banquet of Princeton alumni took place at Delmonico's Tuesday night, 200 guests being present, including President Eliot, Prof. C. A. Young, Clarence M. Dewey, representing the alumni of Yale, C. C. Beaman, president of the Harvard alumni, and many other well-known authorities. Mr. Dewey made one of his witty speeches, and shared the principal applause of the evening with Gen. McClellan, who spoke brilliantly on "Princeton and Art," and was greeted with cheers for "Little Mac."

Good County to Move Out of.

WHEELING, Va., March 20.—A Granbury, White Sulphur Springs, Va., citizen is great excitement in the valley country over reported rumors in that region, of any building of the main infraction of the law. On Tuesday last John Harris, a special agent, was sent to investigate the matter. Harris found four men now in the jail, and four more in the county jail. Saturday night, County Superintendent W. O. Davis was found at several times by some unknown parties, and narrowly escaped. Harris is now in the county jail, and is believed to be in possession of a valuable clue to the case.

Propose to Divide the Fund.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 20.—The revenue committee of the house agreed to report back favorably Dickmann's bill refunding to counties having the Illinois Central railroad 2 per cent of the 7 per cent on the gross earnings annually paid into the state treasury. The reason assigned for the passage of the bill was that the payment of the 7 per cent on the gross earnings exempted the Illinois Central Railroad company from taxation and the counties along the line are prevented from securing revenues from that source.

Russian Open to Cincinnati.

CINCINNATI, March 20.—The Russian Jews of this city have suggested the Russian of the Russian, Opera and Dramatic company of New York, to appear next Saturday evening in the celebrated five-act tragedy, "Die Judin." The play will be presented in their own dialect, known as Yiddish-Dutch. The proceeds will be devoted to their Jewish free school in this city.

New Southern Railway Project.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., March 20.—Articles of incorporation were filed Thursday with the secretary of state authorizing the formation of the Alabama & Memphis Railroad from Pensacola to Memphis via Meridian, Ala., passing through the best timber and agricultural regions in the south. The incorporators are business men with strong financial backing.

And Didn't Know It Was Loaded.

CINCINNATI, March 20.—The indictment for manslaughter against James Boyd, who killed his son, has been returned on motion of the county prosecutor. The shooting occurred about a year ago, and was probably unintentional. The father attempted to frighten his boy into obedience by drawing an old rusty revolver on him.

England Threatening the Colonies.

LONDON, March 20.—A letter of thanks to the people of the British colonies for their efforts to send troops to aid England in her operations in the Sudan and elsewhere has been prepared, and is receiving the signatures of tens of thousands of citizens. It reflects the gratitude of the people of the mother country to their kinsmen beyond the seas, for the generous offers which prove the existence of a faithful love of country that shall keep the people one and the empire indivisible.

Sent a Crank to England.

NEW YORK, March 20.—Rev. Elias Bray, the man who was arrested here last Monday, and who declared that his mission on earth was to remove President Cleveland, was shipped to England by the authorities Thursday. He had in his possession, when arrested, a steamer ticket by the Indian line to Liverpool, and this circumstance has been taken advantage of to get the dangerous crank out of the country.

A London Landlord Reduces His Rents.

LONDON, March 20.—At the real estate auction rooms in Tottenham Yard Thursday a sensation was caused by the announcement that the duke of Richmond had ordered a 10 per cent reduction in the rentals of all his London property. As the duke is the largest single owner of property in the metropolis, his action cannot fail to have an important effect upon the value of rental estates.

Wales Arrives at Berlin.

BERLIN, March 20.—The prince of Wales and duke of Edinburgh arrived at midnight Thursday. They were met by the Crown Prince Frederick William and his wife, the Princess Victoria, their sister, Prince Edward, eldest son of the prince of Wales, also accompanied his father. They will be the guests of the crown prince during their visit.

The Car and the Pope.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 20.—The rupture between Russia and the Vatican is now complete. The car has ordered all Catholic clergymen in the empire to formally acknowledge his authority as superior to that of the pope. Failing in this their functions will be superseded.

Two Men Accidentally Killed.

EAGLE PASS, Tex., March 20.—A premature explosion of a blast in a coal mine near here Thursday resulted in the death of Manuel Soloriano and Pedro Garcia. Several others were slightly injured.

The ladies are requested to send in recipes for Mr. E. B. Holmstrom's new book previous to April 1st. Information on this practical question will be thankfully received without samples.

The Polo club of Rockford, Rock Island and Freeport, passed through Janesville yesterday enroute to Whitewater where they played the Whitewater club last night. They will stop off at Janesville on their way home to-day and join the merry throng of skaters at the Riverside rink to-night. The clubs are nicely uniformed.

In conversation with Health Officer Dr. O. P. Robinson, this morning, we were informed that but very little sickness prevails in the city at this time, and so serious or dangerous cases are now known to him. Nearly all cases are of an inflammatory nature, there not being a case of scarlet fever or any other contagious disease now in the city. Many people are suffering more or less with colds and lung troubles, owing to this disagreeable March weather, but nothing serious, he hoped, would result from such cases. The health of the city is good, and the death rate very low as compared with other cities having the population of Janesville.

Printed notices have been posted in the various depots along the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway, giving the three sections of the statute relating to hanging on or mounting cars while stationary or in motion, by minors; the penalty attached is a fine not exceeding $25 or imprisonment not exceeding twelve hours; and the officers, agents and employees who shall witness such acts by minors shall at once give information before a justice of the peace or police magistrate, and cause the arrest of the minors who violate the preceding section. This notice says that hereafter these laws will be strictly enforced on the Milwaukee road, so the boys catching rides would do well to beware of the consequences.

THE STEREOPTICON.

THE DESCENDANT OF THE OLD-TIME MAGIC LANTERN.

The County School-House Exhibition of Borneo Days Compared with the Ox-Hydrogen Lighted Photo Pictures of the Present Time.

Every one who has lived in the country in his youth remembers the magic lantern shows that used to come around to the school-house several times a year. The first time I saw a magic lantern show I thought it about the grandest thing that science and art could get up. The programme generally consisted of a lot of Bible illustrations in the first section. We had the finding of Moses, the sacrifice that Abraham almost made, and the different scenes of that sort. This part of the show usually secured the admiration of the local clergy, and took in the Sunday school teachers and their flock. The place that always seemed to attract the most interest was the Ark. The animals slid into the Ark as if they were on roller skates. Another famous thing was the round picture of all colors which the lantern man worked with a crank, when the rings of color seemed to turn in and out of each other, or the crank was turned the other way, the colors turned outward.

Ladies and gentlemen, this represents a quilt for turning lazy boys out of bed on cold mornings.

This patent box always brought down the house and we felt defrauded if a showman came around without giving it to us.

This humble instrument worked almost as well as the present day lantern of the present day. Then the pictures were rudely painted with transparent colors on slips of glass; now the pictures are photographed and thrown on the canvas with all the brilliancy of the sun.

Sometimes think that the cylinder of the old magic lantern hangs over the stereopticon business, and that people hardly realize that they are next time looking on the old objects with every refinement of detail.

My old friend Mack works a stereopticon while the owner, Mr. Drake, does the lecturing. Neither Drake nor Mack are professional lecturers, but they are both very capable men, and like all amateurs have devoted much time to the development and study of the instrument. Mr. Drake has been in correspondence with the leading photographic artists in Vienna, Berlin and other places where the stereopticon pictures could be found and so has collected an enormous quantity of glass slides as probably no other man in the country possesses.

I went up in the gallery of a suburban church the other evening to see Mack work the combination. The whole affair was covered in a big black square-topped tent, with such a large number of people that it was difficult to get in.

The double-matched instrument was connected by rubber tubes with a couple of copper arrangements that looked like the generators of a soda water fountain.

"Yes," said Mack, "placing his hand on one of the copper holders, 'there is now a pressure inside of this about four times greater than that on the boiler of a lake steamer with a full head of steam on it.'"

"There is oxygen in that one and hydrogen in this," said Mack. "The two gases are accurately gauged and mixed. Here he pulled the mixed gas, and the flame that shot against the white stick of chalk-like substance was of an almost invisible bluish tint. I gave a slight scream and prepared for flight."

"That's because there is a little too much oxygen," said Mack, as he turned to stopcock. "This is a very important carefully done, because a little too much oxygen might set the picture on fire, and that is a very serious matter."

The pale flame soon began to tell on the cylinder of lime. Presently the heated stick gave out a blinding, brilliant light, which Mack held the upper one in the same careful manner.

The pictures were all arranged in an oblong box as they should be shown, so that all could see them. The pictures were placed in boxes in either the upper or lower instrument. First was a Palestine colored scene. This from the upper instrument. In the lower was placed the first picture of a horse being driven through a forest. The picture was gradually raised and the clouds and the picture were intermingled on the canvas. Then the cover of the upper nozzle was gradually raised and the clouds and the picture were intermingled on the canvas. Then the cover of the upper nozzle was gradually raised and the clouds and the picture were intermingled on the canvas.

Mr. Drake's support to twenty of her intimate friends was given Monday night. On this occasion the famous service of solid gold was used. These yellow disks are seldom brought out from the Astor vault. They cost $102,000, it is said, though I have heard the figures exaggerated to $300,000. Anybody there is a great treasure and a thing for the maul can at any time be melted into good bullion and only the workmanship lost. I have attended many of the Astor entertainments, but never one when the gold disks were displayed. A friend who is said that the magnificent privilege declared that she didn't enjoy the experiment very much, after all.

In the first place," she said, "the tables were completely covered with gold, and the plates on which they were served. The faintest morsel seemed to have no flavor at all, and after awhile I fancied that they became impregnated with the peculiar metallic taste of gold. I tried to get a detective in disguise, placed there to see that I didn't slip a plate into my bodice. He was afterward introduced to me, and I had reason to believe that his covert glances had been sent me, but he still kept his eyes on my supper all the same. No, thank you, fine china ware is good enough for me."

Items of Congressional Cost.

It costs the government $25,000 a year to fold the speeches of congressmen and senators sent out as campaign documents. Senators and congressmen are given a free stationery every year. A chaplain for the senate or house is paid $3,000 a year; a messenger $1,400.

A London fire reporter doesn't say house or corporation. He says the "fire took place in the vicinity" of "Mansel" St. & Co.

A Grimston of Brigham Young.

One of the numerous "sons of Brigham Young" is somewhat conspicuous here just now as an assistant in the Swain court case. This judge, Advocate Ada Bird Gardiner, this young son of polygamy is an attorney of some note in Utah.

He studied law and was graduated at Columbia college. He is tall and is considered a good-looking fellow. He is, of course, but one wife, for although a Mormon he is not a polygamist. Judge Advocate Gardiner sent for him to assist the prosecution, which in itself is a compliment, as that officer is considered the ablest lawyer in the army. On one day Lieut. Young distinguished himself by his services in preventing the judge from making a mistake of fact, and in doing so, over the ordinary solemn faces of the uniformed court about the table. A son of Brigham Young, graduated at West Point, is now in the engineer corps, and it is said, is a very capable man. He is married, to one wife only.

A Close Shave.

It has been decided by St. Louis judge that three cents, but of Longfellow and an oil painting worth $1,000, may constitute an "art parlor," but it's rather a close shave.
